Bomb Damages U.S. Capitol; Anonymous Caller Cites Laos

No One Hurt By Blast in Early Hours

By Robert Siner WASHINGTON, March 1.--A powerful explosion seriously dam-aged the Capitol at 1:30 a.m. today. 30 minutes after a telephone caller warned that e bomb had been plaoted "in retallation" for the U.S.-backed invasion of Laos.

There were no injuries, but the blast seriously damaged the ground floor of the Senate wing and, according to Capitol Police Chief James Powell, appeared to open "serious cracks" in the west

President Nixon condemned the bombing as a "shocking act of violence which will outrage all Americans.

Later in the day, police evacuated the Federal Reserve Board Building when an anony-mous telephone caller warned that a bomb was about to go oif Police and security officers searched the building but found no explosives. The Capitol explosion, centered in an unmarked rest room used by senators, badly damaged the Senate barber shop, blew doors off rooms along the corridor, broke windows for hundreds of feet and damaged some statues in the exhibit area directly beneath the great rotunds of the Capitol.

It was the most severe damage inflicted on the Capitol since 1314, when it was burned by British troops,

Chief Powell said that the blast was due to a bomb that was probably either dynamite or an explosive compounded from nitro-siverine. The Senate chamber, on the floor above the blast, was almost undanlaged and the Senate convened there at 10 a.m. this morning. Before the Senate and House convened, the police, Army

CAIRO, March 1 (NYT) .--Amid an emerging sense of gloom over a deadlock in Arab-Israeli settlement efforts, which seemed to be flourishing until a week ago, Egypt turned today to the Big Four powers with an ap-peal to save the situation before the expiration of the Suez Canal cease-fire at midnight Saturday. There were indications here last week that Cairo would be agreeable to any unanimous recommendation of the Big Four-the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union-to avert the collapse of the peace mission of Gunnar V. Jarring, the United Nations intermediary.

Acting swiftly after receiving from Mr. Jarring an official notice of Israel's refusal to withdraw fully from occupied Arab territories, Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad this morning summoned the chief diplomats in Cairo of the four nations.

Details of Mr. Riad's messages were not made public; but wellinformed diplomatic sources said man of the Cairo regime charged Engineers on tha Fleet Street newspapers, following the orders of the national union leadership. forced a shutdown although most other unions were apparently ready to work. Newspaper owners, already severely hit by recession, had pleaded for the right to publish.

The one nctable exception to the engineers' success came in the Rolls-Royce air engine plants. There, most members of the unions reported for work. As one Rolls man put it, it did not seem a good time for a strike at Rolls. The company has gona into bankruptcy because of losses on the RB-211 engine it contracted to make for Lockbeed's new TriStar airbus, and negotiations with Lockheed officials are to start tomorrow.

Costs of the strike to British industry were estimated at around $25 million.

No Attention

The Conservative government shows no sign of paying the slightest attention to the strike -or to the next one planned. Prime Minister Edward Heath has said that he will stand on the industrial-relations bill after campaigning for it in a general election last June and winning. But today's strike did reflect the growing tension between unions and the government. The legislation has aroused fear and resentment, and there is also fory at Mr. Heath's attempt to discourage large wage increases.

The wage fight centers now on the post office workers. Their strike for more than the 8 percent increase offered by the post office will be six weeks old tomorrow night-far longer than almost anyone had imagined possible. No new proposals to end the postal strike are now in sight Though some treated it at first as a lark, it is now beginning to irritate the public and increase tha general atmosphere of emotional division in the country.

Britain's National Gallery Gets 1/3d Off on $1.2 Million Bargain

LONDON, March 1 (Reuters) .- Britain's National Gallery today bought a 15th-century masterpiece by the Flemish painter Roger van der Weyden for less than £500,000-two-thirds of its estimated market value.

The painting, of 13th-century French lawyer St. Ivo Helery, is one of the most expensive works bought by the gallery.

The Van der Weyden was discovered in 1968 by an art consultant during a visit to the home of the late Lady Violet Baird at Bray, 30 miles west of London.

After her death in 1969, the Nationa' Gallery began two years of negotiations to purchase the painting from the executors of Lady Baird's will, in which she requested that it should go to the gallery.

Patience Emphasized In Peace Negotiations

By Jonathan C. Randal JERUSALEM, March 1 (WP). -Eighly informed Foreign Ministry sources pleaded today for U.S. understanding and acceptance of "differences of opinion" now that Egypt has threatened to place its grievances against Israel before the UN Security Council Immediately at stake was the prolongation of the cease-fire beyond the March 7 expiration date. But deemed equally important was the fate of pro-peace elements within the Israeli cabinet who, eight days ago, won grudging but tenuous approval from Premier Golds Meir to explore a Middle East peace settlement.

The sources preached the benefits already derived from U.S. and Israeli tenacity since the 1967 war and cantioned the United States against joining in any Big Four or Security Council efforts to condemn Israel.

Running throughout the sources' argument was the thema that continued patience and tenacity were needed not only in dealing with the Soviet Union and Egypt but also with the more hawkish Israeli leadership.

Mrs. Meir Skeptical

Foreign Minister Abbs Eban is generally credited with being a major pro-peace proponent whose willingness to negotiate at this point is judged with skepticism Mrs. Meir and even suspicion by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

Despite growing uneasiness here, which has convinced many Israelis that Washington is applying pressure, the sources said, We have reason to think that the United States has engaged itself not to press us to return" to the pre-1967 frontiers. They did not elaborate on this point.

"American-Israeli relations can absorb differences of opinion," the sources said. "It would be very strange and impulsive if the U.S. changed its position in the Big Four or Security Council." Addnced as benefits of past tewere developments as nacity varied as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's recent willingness to mention the previously taboo concept of a peace treaty with Israel and Israeli prescience in discounting once widely held Western beliefs that the Pales. tinian guerrilla movement could prevent Arab governments from engaging in meaningful peace negotiations.

Sadat Strategy

The sources indicated that Mr. Sadat, knowing that he lacks the pan-Arab charisma of the late President Nasser, may be concentrating more on internal affairs and allowing Syria and Jordan to deal with the Palestinian problem.

They also suggested that Egypt has no confidence that it can count on Soviet aid and credited Washington's decision to provide Israel with $500 million in arms last fall as helping prevent up-

It serves a rich variety of French specialties, including pastries and fantastic political rumors.

The éclairs don't change very much, but the runnors do frequently. The hottest one now is that the Saigon administration is planning an invasion of North Vietnam.

This rumor has a sporadic history, based on a constant ground current of genuine sentiment among some military leaders that the war can be ended only by attacking North Vietnam. The rumor flared briefly when South Vietnamese, troops, crossed into Cambodia last year and is having a new run now, in the wake of the incursion into Leos.

Comment by Kissinger

Friday in Washington, Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser, said that an invasion was "not the dominant probability at tha moment."

That is the feeling here, too, among Vietnamese and Americans in important positions, and yet the rumor is launched and floated. Once afloat, politicians feel they cannot afford to sink it unequivocally, fearing political suicide if they were to renounce

Sen. George McGovern, D., S.D., described the bombing as "barbaric" but blamed it on "our Vietnam madness."

Massive bombardment we are continuing year after year against the peoples of Indochina has its counterpart in the mounting destruction of human values in oor own land."

The Capitol, as are most federal buildings, is open to the public daily, including Sundays, until 4:30 p.m. After thet, anyone entering the Capitol must have proper credentials and demonstrate that he has business there. The police theorize that the bomb had a timing mechanism and was left during normal tourist hours yesterday. Last fall, after a number of incidents, federal buildings ezcept the Capitol were put under stricter security. The number of entrances was restricted and persons entering were required to show identification.

President Nixon said today that despite the bombing, such measures should not be instituted at the Capitol

The President also called for increased security steps such as those taken recently to protect the White House and foreign embassies strengthening the security forces and giving them spacial training. The Capitol is protected by more than 609 policemen working in round-the-clock shifts,

Recently one of the Capitol policemen told a reporter that it was impossible to protect the building from bombers without closing it altogether. Another officer said today: "Anyone can walk in bere, hide a bomb.... and walk right out again."

Department spokesman Charles Bray confirmed that the nature of the Israeli reply was discussed. Soviet Points Noted

He then added, "The secretary noted the points Dobrynin made and pointed out that he saw no advantage to be gained by making propaganda exchanges on this subject [the Middle East]." Other officials pointed to a Soviet government statement today calling on the United States and other countries to exert pressure on Israel to comply with the Arab call for total with-

U. S. officials noted that Mr. Dobrynin's call at the State Department marked the first time in months that the Soviet Union had discussed the Middle East directly with the United States.

During this period, the officials added tartly, the department was wondering where the Russians had been while the United States was passing through a very difficult period of giving support and encouragement to Ambassador Jarring's mission and keeping in touch with the parties.

5 Die, Many Hurt As India Opens General Election

NEW DELHI, March 1 (AP) --Five persons were killed and scores injured today in violence that disrupted the opening of In-dia's ten-day national elections for a new parliament. Balloting was suspended in some areas.

Supporters of rival political candidates fought outside voting booths in four of the nine states that went to the polls. The battlers used knives, pistols, stones and soda-pop bottles. Three of the deaths, including that of a 14-year-old boy, were attributed to gunfire while the two others were blamed on stabbings.

Polling had to be suspended in six polling stations either bccause of clashes or because steel ballot boxes were stolen.

setting the balance of power in the Middle East.

Given such dividends, the sources argued that further tenacity could persuade Egypt to accept Israeli demands for direct negotiations on less than Cairo's terms for total withdrawal. The advantage for Egypt, the sources implied, was that the present propeace consensus inside the Israeli cabinet would prove more forthcoming than if the present effort failed. For the record, the Foreign Ministry sources rejected the Egyptian government spokesman's statement that the latest Israeli note to Cairo "closed the door" on further peace efforts. The Israeli sources maintained that their reply was "most moderate and conciliatory" and "in truth opened the road" to real negotiations.

In the same vein, the sources described as "very far-fetched" Time magazine's assertion that a series of Israeli-Jordanian meetings had lad to "tentative" agree-ment, which they said was "simply not true." However, much of the force of this disclaimer was dissipated by the sources' assertion that King Hussein no longer considered that Jordan's ROSH HANIQRA, Israel, March 1 (AP).—An abducted Jewish night watchman and the first Arab guerrilla sentenced to death in Israel were exchanged yesterday at this Israeli-Lebanese border town.

In the swap, arranged by the International Red Cross, Shmuel Rosenwasser, 55, wes returned to Israel after 14 months as a captive of the guerrillas.

The Romanian-born watchman had been kidnapped by the Arabs as he was making his night rounds on Jan. 1, 1969, in the town of Metulia, a frontier community farther to the east.

Mr. Rosenwasser was exchanged for Mahmoud Hejazi, a member of the el-Fatah organization who infiltrated into Israel in 1965 and was caught. He had originally been sentenced to death for a machine-gun attack on an army patrol but this decision was commuted in 1966 to 20 years in prison.

Judge Challenges Nixon SEC Nominee

WASHINGTON, March 1 (WP). -Testimony given a Senate com-mittee hy William J. Casey, President Nixon's nominee for chairman of the Securities and Ex-

William Proxmire, D., Wis., said it reveals a "serious discrepancy" between the judge's account of a nineyear-old plagiarism suit and what Mr. Casey told the Senate Bank-

Mr. Casey said last night that he did not want to dispute Judge Craven's recollection. "I testifi-ed to my best recollection and to what my attorney had told me from his recollection," he said.

WASHINGTON, March 1 reproduction and trigger melting Mr. Volpe said. "we cannot and (UPI) .- A new fight over continued federal spending for development of a supersonic transport plane began in Congress today with Transportation Becretary John A. Voipe accusing SST foes of using "almost hysterical sloganeering" to kill it.

Mr. Volpe and William M. Magruder, director of the $1.3 billion SST project for the Transportation Department, insisted onew that the 1,800-mile-per-hour craft would not hurt the environment. They argued that failure to go ahead with work on it would seriously jeopardize U.S. leadership in aviation.

They testified before a House Appropriations subcommittee considering an administration request to continue SST funding through June 30 at the current level of $210 million and to provide $235 million in new money for the next fiscal year.

The House and the Senate agreed late last year-after long, heated debate-to maintain financing of the SST until the end of this month.

Great Investment

If Congress refuses to extend present spending, development of two SST prototypes would be halted unless private industry chose to proceed on its own. Mr. Volpe said that the $864 million the project already has cost American taxpayers represented a great investment.

He urged Congress to decide the question of further spending "on the basis of facts to be presented here, rather than on the basis of unsupported charges and what has become at times almost hysterical sloganeering."

The secretary discounted claims by SST opponents that the plane would create ear-shattering sonic booms, cause increased incidence of skin cancer, disturb animal

Jews everywhere. "Nonviolence is not a Jewish concept," he told both audiences. When Moses, who was a good Jew, saw an Egyptian smiting a Jew, he did not tell that Jew to turn the other check. Moses did not form a committee to inquire into the root causes of anti-Semitism among Egyptians.

As the Tahnod tells us, Moses amote the Egyptian. The essence of Judaism is spiritual, and I say violence is evil when it is not necessary. But the snirit cannot exist without the hody, and to protect a Jew's body a Jew's fist is sometimes required," he said,

Background Unclear

Rabbi Kahane, son of a noted Jewish scholar, is himself a scholar as well as the holder of a law degree. He ounded the JDL in 1968, after having spent several years in Washington helping produce a book supporting the war in Vietnam-as a front, he says, while he was actually investigating extremists for a government organization he refuses to name.

Panther leadership, once quite talkative, now refuses to make itself available to discuss the party's status or the rumors that it is all but defunct.

Some say that at this point Panther leaders are attempting to keep out of the news because most of them face criminal trials and are attempting to win delays from the court in order to be defended by Charles R. Garry. Mr. Garry, chief counsel for the party, is currently defending Bob-by Scale, its national chairman, who is on trial in New Haven, Conn., on charges of murder and CONSULTECY.

Newton, recently designated supreme commander of the party, is charged with manslaughter in connection with the 1967 shooting of an Oakland policeman. He was convicted in a previous trial and served time but the conviction was later reversed because of various errors by the trial judge. While in city after city the police place Panther membership at a low level, such figures do not accurately reflect the party's influence and support in the black community.

Yes, it was ours.

We have to admit we've led a lot of innocent imitators off-theroad, away from the straight and narrow path.

The trouble started when we first introduced our 4-wheel drive. It looked easy. So everybody got in line and tried to make the same thing.

That was the sin.

Original sin. Because we had all the experience. We had been off-the-road a long time. Those other people couldn't have known you have to build axles, drive trains, and suspension systems stronger than you might think.

Or, like now, offer V-6 engines. And self-adjusting brakes with dual master-cylinder, just in case.

It's true. We have gotten a lot of our imitators hub-deep into trouble.

But we can redeem ourselves. You can, too.

If you go straight for the original.

Laos: The End of the Line

talk from Salgon's leaders about an invasion cut—the quick fix. Not the least of the of North Vietnam? Nothing much, apparently. If you accept the private reassurances of administration officials, the United States is not going to invade-or even "incurse"—with its own troops, and the performance of the South Vietnamese in Laos 30 far does not argue for their trying it, even with American air and logistical support. We are also told, however, that there's no point in relieving the enemy of all anxiety on this count either; so that is why the President pointedly left that option wide open when the question came up at his last press conference and also why Dr. Kissinger, when he was asked about it by Bernard Kalb on the CBS morning news the other day, would say no more than that "it's not the dominant probability at this moment." In other words this is an exerclse in psychological warfare-the theory being that while this invasion threat remains, the North Vletnamese cannot deploy their full resources against the South Vletnamese forces in southern Laos.

Well, It is a perfectly sound theory for a conventional war sltuation and oua would not want to depriva onr side of the capacity to engage in feints and threats to keep the enemy off-balance and in doubt. But the fact of the matter is that this is hot, and never has been, a conventional war, either in the manner in which it has been waged or in the way it has been dealt with politically at home. From the very beginning of our involvement, the essence of the strategy has been to start small, while talking big: to profess to be engaging in strictly limited measures, for home front consumption, while holding out the projection of nearly limitless measures by way of encouraging conciliation, or capitulation, by the enemy.

The Johnson administration called it "graduated response" and the way it worked was that the next step always began as a bluff on the assumption that the last turn of the thumbscrew-the last infusion of American troops or deep penetration of our bombers in the North-would do the trick. When the last turn didn't work, however, the bluff-the logical next turn of the screw -all too often became the reality.

Ultimately, of course, the Johnson administration ran out of things it could do to "graduate" our response without taking unacceptable risks, either in terms of what the Russians or the Chinese might do, or in terms of a political upheaval at home. The turning point, when the Johnson strategy collapsed, came early in 1968, when we didn't add the next requested increment of American troops, and stopped most of the bombing of the North, and abandoned the search for the shortcut that would bring the enemy to negotiate an acceptable settlement, that is when the switch to "Vietnamization" really began, when the progressive withdrawal of American troops became inevitable. We recite this history at some length in order to point up what is different and what is the same about the Nixon strategy. It is rightly called different in that we are actually withdrawing our troops and accelerating the transfer of the war burden to the South Vietnamese; in this sense the war, for us, is shrinking, even while it spills over into Cambodia and Laos. But it is the same in one essential element, becaose we are still employing the

What are we supposed to make of the big same old thumbscrew in search of the shortarguments made at the time of Cambodia was that this would show the other side that President Nixon was tough and unpredictable; and then came Laos, out of tha hlue, to reinsure the Cambodian operation. An administration that would invade Laos would do what next? Invade North Vietnam, Of course, or at least let the enemy think that it would; perhaps this would bring the North Vletnamese to their senses and encourage them to negotlate.

We do not say that invasion is President Nixon'a intent; we merely note that the progression from bluff to actuality has been the story of Vletnam all along; it is an insidious process, in which the next step, however unwanted, is very nearly forced upon us by the failure of the last. Wc are told this won't happen now because our side is winning and the enemy is on the ropes. And anyway it's all different because now we are getting out. But we were told that in October, 1963, when the South Vietnamese were winning and the enemy's cause was never more forlorn, and we were beginning to schedule the withdrawal of our men.

But it didn't work out that way in 1963; in November of that year Diem was overthrown and the North Vletnamese moved in to exploit the resulting political chaos; in almost no time the balanca of force shifted to the enemy. It didn't work out that way in early 1965, when the first American combat units landed in South Vletnam and wa were told not to worry; our troops were there to guard our airfields, to free the South Vietnamese to fight, to "buy time" for Salgon to mobilize

And it didn't work in Cambodia, which was supposed to be "decisive." After Cambodia cnma Laos. So maybe it will work in Laos, although the initial returns are hardly encouraging. In any case, it is not too soon to be looking for the next turn of the thumbscrew, which in all logic would seem to be an invasion of North Vletnam.

It may never come to that, of course; but that, in our view, is the issue that ought to be concerning the war crilics of both partles in Congress-rather than a revival of the McGovern-Hatfield resolution which failed last year.

Later in the spring, when we can better judge the Laotian gamble and weigh the President's new schedule of withdrawals, which is due in April, will be time enough to argue over the fixing of some future deadline for ending the war. For now, the first order of business ought to be passage of the Mondale-Saxbe resolution which would forbid any American participation of any sort in an invasion-or "incursion"-into North Vietnam. If the administration had no such designs, no great harm will have been done; we have, after all, imposed other limits on what we are prepared to do by way of trying to persuade the North Vletnamese to give in, or give up or go away. And if the administration actually harbors some such intention, that is all the more reason for Congress to build upon the precedent of last year's Cooper-Church amendment and impose yet another restraint. Not the least of the lessons of Vletnam is that when you are dealing with thumbscrews, the temptation is almost irresistible to try one more twist, at ever-increasing risk, because there is always the hope that the next twist will be the last.

ONDON .- Try to imagine an American federal law authorizing the Attorney General to deport any allen whose presence he declared would not be "conducive to the public good." Imagioe further list the accused alien would have no right to a statement of reasons, a hearing, or access to the court.

"Don't give John Mitchell ideas," a volce of conscience whispers; but the truth is that not even the present Attorney General of the United Slates would contemplate trying to acquire that kind of unreviewable power over the lives of lodividuals. It is not the American system.

But that is exactly what Mltchell's nearest British coulvalent. the home secretary, has just proposed by way of a change in Britisb law. And hardly anyene in this country has blinked an eve.

120 retary of the Conservative British government, was regarded, when he took office, as a particularly amiable man, one who would avoid the pitfalls of excessive seal that always threaten law-enforcement officials. He has turned out to be surprisingly insensitive to-almost uninterested in-clvll liberties issues. But the proposal to give him such a sweeping power of deportationone staggering to the American imagination-has much more behind it than Maudling's personal bellefs. It reflects a deep philosophical difference in the approach to democratic government on opposite sides of the Atlantic The American Way We Americans like to say that we have a government of laws. not men. By that we mean that the decisions of individual government officials are subject to challenge through a legal pro-cess. A written constitution provides a formidable check. The last word very often lies with the courts. The British system could well be described as one of men. not laws. And it is not only that there is no written constitution. and therefore no junicial suprem-The whoie tradition here aey. is to yest broad discretion in individual officials. From the customs man at Londou Airport to the home secretory, everyone operates under fewer rules than his American equal. The proecdure used does not matter much so long as he reaches a reasonable result. The theory that justifies such official power in a democracy is the parliamentary system. If a minister coes wrong, under that theory, Parliament will call him to secount. Justice Felix Prankfurter, the greatest of American Anglophiles. used to talk obout the case of Miss Savidge, who prnvnked an instant parliamentary outery when she was questioned im-properly by the police. That kind of reaction was the basis of the lustice's faith in parliamentary democracy. It is an appealing theory, no doubt of it. Any American might admire a country where all the elaborate mechanism of judicial review is unnecessary, where the legislature has the time and sensitivity to correct all of a modern society's injustice and administrative obtugeness. But it is only a theory.

When Maudling orders some person's deportation, he has to do so on the ndvice of his civil scryents. But those officials have their own bias, and without sn adversary licaring there is no test of truth. It is as Justlee Jackson sald years ago in an immigration case: "I am sure the officials here have acted upon information which, if it stood the test of trial, would justify [the:r] order. But not even they koow whether it would stand this test."

Nor is Parliament a real corrective. The House of Commons is so busy these days that very few individuals can hope to attract its nttention to a case of claimed injustice. And if members of the House did raise a question, there is no assurance that a home secretary would tell even them the real reasons for his action.

Such considerations led many legal authorities in Britain to ROME.—Italy's half-million pro-fessional men are reatless these days: they have franzied themselves into a fighting mood. On Peb. 4 and 5, attorneys, corporation lawyers, architects, civil engineers, surveyors, sur-geons, general practitioners, fi-nancial agents, stock brokers and bookkeepers joined forces and went on their first nationwide strike. Wildcat strikes are called for in the coming months. Here, on the 4th, a long and compact procession of well-dressed gentlemen, carrying posters and led by cheerleaders, blocked for half a day the already chaotic motor traffic of the city. Not many years ago, Prince Alessandro Torionie used to tle up traffic once a week by moving his precious stable of thoroughbreds across Rome at the height of the rush hour. Unlike Prince Torlonia's Well-be-haved thoroughbreds, the Roman professional men didn't move on: they occupied the square in front of the Palanzo Chigi, where Premier Emillo Colombo and his staff have their offices. The tax reform, good or bad as it may be (some minor points are being criticized by specialists). marks an effort on the part of the Italian government to control tax evasion. According to two recent inquiries, led respectively by Prof. Aristide Mondani of Mediobanca and Dr. Vincenzo Maresca, who is inspector-general of the Ministry of Finance, the percentage of Italian tax-evaders is highest among professionals. For the government is being too professional groups tha tax-evasion "propensity rate" is 71 perhard on them. They claim that the new tax reform plits them on cent. Mr. Heath's Immigration Bill additional curbs on immigrants from Commonwealth countries would carry out a specific pledge by Prime Minister Heath'a Conservative party in the 1970 election campalgn.

Home Secretary Reginald Maudling says the government's purpose is to assure the public that there will be "no further largescale permanent immigration." but he knows that the flow bas been reduced to a trickle under existing law. At present the Home Secretary can issue in a year as few as 5,000 work permits-the document which most be held by an arriving head of family on entry.

Mr. Maudling's bill in practice would have little effect on the number of incoming immigrants but woold obligate arrivals to register with the police and to obtain government consent for any change of job or address. In overwheiming majority, "patrials" woold be whites from Canada, Australia, New Zealand or from families that once manned the outposts of empire. Mr. Bonham-Carter and other specialists thus regard the bill as racist, divisive and unnecessary. Its real purpose is strictly polltical: to keep an unwise Conscrvative campaign pledge and to appease followers of the right-wing Tory demagogue, Enoch Powell. Its effects would be to unravel much progress made on the racial problem in Britain in recent years and to erode further the aiready tenuous ties that link the mother country with non-white members of the Commonwealth.

total effect is a somber acknowledgement that the policies described may not be working. Take the definition of the Nixon Doctrine. The message says: "We recognize that the doctrine, like ony philosophic attitude . . . Is not a detailed design. In this case, ambiguity is increased since it is given full meaning through a process that involves other countries . . . for the doctrine's full eleboration requires their participation." In sum, the doctrine is what others think it is. It is a kind of Rorschach test. Which is precisely what critics have been saying. On Vietnam, the message indicates that the President will not accept the rapid pullout advocated by many senators and Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird. Neltbor will he accept political compromise in Salgon as a price of promoting the talks in Paris. On the contrary, the purpose of Vietnamization has been to give the North Vietnamese an "incentive to turn to negotiations rather than protracted war." Limits Conceded

But the message concedes that this policy "cannot, except over a long period, end the war al-Ingether It further acknow ledges that as American troop strength dwindles, the chances of inducing negotiations diminishes. As to the Middle East, the message pushes once again the American peace initiative. The Arabs are to accept an agreement with Israel. Israel Is to withdraw from territories occupied in the Six-Day War of 1967. The prewar Isreeli frontiers, the message says with new precision, are to be modified only by "insubstantial changes."

The Arms Issue

But the report acknowledges that the initiative is not now teing pursued jointly with the Soviet Union. It contains a detailed description of what happened to the effort undertaken last year to achieve peace in tha Middle East without Soviet co-operation. That attempt to put over a made-in-America settlement yielded tension between this country and Israel, Arab did come it was thanks to Russian pressure-further Soviet military penetration.

In the matter of arms controi, the President acknowledges that the Russians have advanced a proposal for limiting deployment of the main defensive weapnn, the antiballistics missile. But the President dismisses an AEMnnly accord as a "mere token" agreement."

That means that he wants to build onto an ABM second an including offensive agreement weapons. But the President complicates that task by arguing that the multiple warheads which might in future be added to the Russian SS-9 missile are some-Letters-

The Alsop Trail

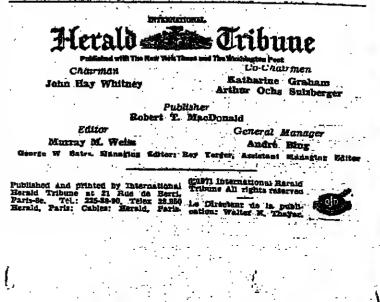

It is not reality that matters so much at the White House today, but the growing distortions from reality which are accepted by Henry Kissinger as being true. To extricate America from Vietnam, President Nixon must cut the Alsop Trail-the unin-terrupted trail or lies and half-truths flowing between Saigon, tha State Department, the Pentagon and the White House.

Cutting the Alsop Trail should prove far less wasteful in human lives and less problematic than the recent probes against tha Ho Chi Minh Trail, in Laos and Cambodia.

President Nixon could probably achieve a decisive result by pick-ing up a phone and abruptly requesting a few on-tha-spot resignations.

ROME, March 1 (NYT) .-- Premier Emilio Colombo today started a parliamentary fight for the survival of his seven-month-old government, which has come under increasing pressure during the last few days.

Two separate votes of confidence in the Colombo cabinet, both decisive for its fate, are scheduled in the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate later this week. If the government fails to win such a vote, it must resign.

Continued rioting in L'Aquila, a mountain city 50 miles northeast of here, for the fourth consecutive day today added to the strains besetting the center-left coalition on which the Colombo government is based.

The police moved armored vehicles including half a dozen personnel carriers into L'Aquila today to quell the disorders. The national police chief, Angelo Vicari, who is on the scene, told newsmen today that "xtremst tringes" were behind the L'Aquila troubles.

Reply to Charges

Today's repressive measures in L'Aquila were clearly meant to disprove leftist charges that the police and the government were "soft" toward neo-Fascist plotters, alleged to have fomented the disturbances in L'Aquila in the same way they were stirring recurrent violence in Reggio di Calabria in the deep south during the last eight months.

While the loudest accusations against the government are coming from the Communist party. there are also signs that leftist groups within the ruling alliance are uneasy over the seeming surge of neo-Fascism and would like sterner police action to curb it. The main target of the Communist charges is Interior Min-ister Franco Restivo, who is responsible for the police. Communist spokesmen said today that their party's representatives in Perliament would demand Mr. Restivo's resignation in the forthcoming confidence debate, contending that be proved unable to stem the neo-Fascist menace. . The Communist campaign against Mr. Restivo, a 59-year-old

Christian Democrat from Sicily, seems aimed at inducing leftist Socialists and other disgruntled left-of-center members of the coalition to withhold their support from the Colombo government in the confidence votes later this week

Mr. Colombo went to the Chamber of Deputies today to inform it officially that another member of his government. Justice Minister Oronzo Reale, had resigned. Tomorrow, Mr. Colomba will make the same statement at the Senate, and debate in hoth houses of parliament will follow.

Artist Celebrates Birthday in London

By Max Wykes-Joyce

LONDON, March 1.-The Belgian-born, London-based Maurice Jadot is celebrating his 78th birthday with a show of sculpture and reliefs at the John Whibley Gallery, 22 Cork St., W1. There are a number of works in which he treats fiberglass in a wholly original way: In ordinary light the works appear to be earth and wood-colored relief panels, but when a strong light is placed before or behind a panel, many colors, like medieval stained glass, appear.

This is the latest innovation of one of the most energetic and creative of adopted Englishmen. Trained as an architect, he served in the Belgian Army in World War I, was sent to England and remained in 1919. Originally a painter, he virtually retired from the exhibition circuit in the late 1930s but reappeared 20 years later, still a painter. In the early 1960s he became a composer of marvelously textured wood reliefs.

The new paintings are almost all of the sea, the bright green foliage and the rolling headlands of the Cornish river estuaries and the seeboard. The exceptions are a few almost abstract climalic oils—e snowstorm, hirds in a storm, sunset, clouds and sea in the classical Constable tradition -and four flower pleces, each charmingly titled with the name of one of his four children. These are, in truth, anything but still lifes, for they vibrate with all the colors of earth and air, flashing across the canvas like gigantic fireworks. This is a happy, lively exhibition, art made for chiovment by a man who enjoys life.

Alfred Dunn is yet another of the British sculptors (Moore and Eepworth, for example) born in Yorkshire end trained at Leeds and the Royal Colleges of Art. He is now holding his third oneman show at the Redfern Gallery, 20 Cork St. His sculptures are abstract, metallic, and, more often than not, motorized, though some are complex constructions in which the vertical elements frequently predominate. Dunn also has a reputation as a printmaker. In the present exhibition, therefore, are a group of abstract etchings, a series called "Creatures," which m-cludes "Odd Eyed Owl," "Two Blind Worms," "Hinged Star-fish" and "Peeping Oyster". There are also an original lithograph, "Fringed Pole," which is similar in concept to some of the earlier sculpture, and abstract seri-graphs, "Mirror Verticals" and 'Mirror Horizontal.'

Introducing the Audience in Paris To Yet Another American Playwright

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

zielf is the best judge of scripts in the French theater and one of its finest actors. Before anyone here had heard their names, he pioneered the early works of such American authors as Albee ("Zoo Story" and 'American Dream") and Schisgal ("The Typist," "The Tiger" and "Luv"). Tapping the treasury of Russian literature, he has acted in adaptations of two fascinating psychological dramas by

Andreyev: "Thought" and "The Waltz of the Dogs." At the Theatre Gaite-Montparnasse, Terzieff is now introducing Paris audiences to another novice American playwright, Israel Horowitz, who has something of a reputation off-Eroadway and who wrote the scenario for that rah-rah-revolution movie about contesting undergraduates, "The Strawberry Statement." The two short plays that Tercieff has selected are "It's Called the Sugar Plum" (Sucre d'Orge) "The Indian Wants the and L'Indien Cherche Bronx" Le Bronxi. Both reveal Horowitz as a talented beginner with an assured theater sense and a gift for attention-holding dialogue. "The Indian Wants the Bronx" might have been set down as a Grand Guignol act a few years ago, hut from accounts of the increasing crime rate in New York City it may well be a slice of life. One has the cerie feeling that it is a dramatization of a newspaper item. An East Indian who speaks no English is waiting for a bus on lonely corner. His turban, bizarre clothes and dark com-plexion excite the curiosity of two moronic, young loafers. Idle and vicious, they tount and bully him. His utter helplessness spurs their sadistic fury and, having exhausted their verbal insults, they resort to physical violence. This graphic, sinister scene of stark realism has more than contemporary sociological interest. It expresses compellingly the plight of the unprotected stranger in an alien land where his mere presence arouses savege resentment. The ugly surface action is supported by the larger implications of the theme. Dalio, the French star who has spent much time on the American screen, is the doomed Indian and, though accorded not a single comprehensible line, succeeds by his pantomime and untranslated mutters, in creating a martyr of moving dignity and sharp pathos. Terzieff and Philippe Ogouz are macabrely persuasive as his executors and the powerful little play has an abiding intensity. "It's Called the Sugar Plum" is in a lighter vein which lends the evening a neat balance. It is a farce, but a black-rimmed farce for it begins with a funeral announcement. A college student has accidentally run over one of his classmates and the infuriat-

It may be studied, it may be measured, it may be an "act." but what matter? It comes across the footlights with a hundred times more impact than the hopped-up, aggressive gyrations and raucous self-endorsements of some of his rivals. It is cool, it is smooth and it is extremely engaging.

Divonne, on the other hand, is like a homely hetress without flash to whom everyone pays court, mattering "Well, really she has something." Until Divonne became such a hig money grabber, this small town at the foot of the Jura on the eastern fringe of France was celebrated mainly for its sedative qualities.

Sleep Resort

The climate is soporific, perhaps due to the missma emanating from nearby Lake Geneva. As a sleep resort, Divonne probably luils a big gambler into enduring his losses with mora equanimity. There is a threewater cure which is sup week posed to reduce a nervous type down to a state of placid phlegm. The waters of Divonne are not imbibed but are employed in a hose treatment on the bodies of the nervous wrecks. The cure doctors are also schooled in psychistry. Divonne is 12 miles from Geneve just over the border and is linked by a fast autoroute. There is so much back and forth traffic that the douaniers must occasionally get the impression that they are traffic policemen rather than customs officials. A taxi ride costs just under $4. There is a regular bus service from Geneva to the casino three times a day and twice a day from Lausanne. Around here they don't talk about amusement in terms of "ettractions" but in terms of "dis-tractions." As a "distraction." Divonne is the Jezebei of the western half of Switzerland.

Music in London... Girl Fiddlers Galore

By Henry Pleasants

LONDON, March 1.-Suddenly it seems like old times: Girl fiddle 1 (?) players galore, some of them even playing the good old con-certos that young ladies, and some not so young, have always loved to play-the Glazunov Concerto in A-minor, the Bruch Concerto [[]...]]; in G-minor and Lalo's "Symphonic Expagnole."

Sylvia Marcovici, from Romania, has just made a debut with the London Symphony Orchestra.

U.S. Market Draws Overseas Investment

By Jack Lefler NEW YORK, March 1 (AP).-Poreign countries apparently poured a record amount of money into investments in U.S. business in 1970. Financial sources estimate the amount spent to establish or acquire U.S. subsidiaries at $1.2 hillion, compared with an official Commerce Department tally of $1 billion in 1969.

At the end of 1970, total foreign investment here was estimated at $13 billion. That is still a modest sum in comparison with the estimated $70 billion value of direct American investment overseas, but one which, encouraged by favorable U.S. business reactions and the temptations of a huge market, shows every sign of growing strongly. The Commerce Department reported at the end of 1970 that 491 foreign manufacturing and petroleum companies bad 766 subsidiaries or affiliates in the United States.

Prolific Investors

The most prolific investors are those with home bases in England, Canada, West Germany, the Netherlands and France.

While entry of foreign companies into the U.S. industrial stream intensifies competition, American business sources say they prefer that to an increase of imports. The subsidiary system equalizes tax and labor and material costs, which tend to run lower abroad and make production overseas less expensive.

"It may be a portent of things to come that the largest overseas investment commitment of 1969 was made not by a U.S. firm abroad but by a British company investing in the United States," James Leontiades of the University of Pennsylvania writes in the Columbia Journal of World Business.

Sizeable Stakes

He was referring to the purchase by British Petroleum of certain assets from Atlantic Richfield-Sinclair and the subsequent merger of those properties and other of BP's U.S. assets with Standard Oil of Ohio.

Within recent weeks, one of Europe's largest photocopy machine manufacturers, OCE-Van der Grinten of the Netherlands, entered the U.S. market by acquiring control of ICP Inc. of Illinois.

West German and Swiss companiesin particular BASP, Hoechst, CIBA-Geigy and Stauffer-have been actively acquiring or investing in American chemical and pharmaceutical concerns.

Commerce Department figures for 1969-the latest official ones availableshow that major foreign investments in American industry were $5.3 billion in manufacturing, $2.5 billion in petroleum, $2.2 billion in insurance and $1 billion in trade.

Some Apprehension

But while the welcome mat is made highly visible, many foreign firms remain apprehensive about conditions and situations they might encounter in the highly developed and competitive U.S. market. On official levels, they are barred by the federal government from engaging in coastal or fresh-water shipping, domestic radio communications and domestic air transport. Some states prohibit foreign ownership of land for mineral and agricultural operations and of deposit banks and insurance companies.

And a case in point of problems on the local U.S. level was BASF's January announcement that it was abandoning plans to build a $100 million petrochemical complex on the South Carolina coast because of intense pressure from conservation groups,

Six clubs is an excellent contract, but is not easy to reach. North opened with two no-trump and bid three diamonds on the next round to deny a major suit when his partner bid Stayman. When South then showed that he held a genuine club suit, North contented himself with five clubs, but his partner aggressively continued to slam. After a spade lead, South thought he would have an easy 12 tricks by ruffing a spade in the dummy. But he had to think again when a trump lead revealed the trump division. Now it seemed that a spade rulf would leave East with a trump trick.

The alternative plan was to establish dummy's diamonds, so the declarer led a low diamond from dummy at the third trick. The king won, and the second diamond was played. South felt sure that he would be able to establish dummy's fifth diamond, if not the fourth, but the unexpected happened. West discarded a heart on the second round of diamonds. Robbed of his chance of making his 13th trick in diamonds, South reverted to his first plan. When East won the diamond trick anc: returned a trump, the declarer won in the dummy and ruffed a diamond. By John Speicher. Harper & Row. 262 pp. $6.95.

Reviewed by Thomas Lask

Speicher's bitter, corrosive and despairing novel you can watch one come. You can see its sproutings in the anarchic, festering life in the ghetto of New York's East Village, where the filth, the violence and jungle existence are barely contained by the police from spilling over into more genteel surroundings. You can see those sproutings in greener form in the smug, fastidious and fearful existence in the suburbs, where each man is trying to build up a small enclave against disaster. Speicher uses the aftermath of a Yale victory in the bowl as a metaphor to illustrate the lofty social and financial strivings of these passionate and professional Yale alumni and the vulgar and flimsy values on which they are based. It is a passage crudely written and broadly done, but nothing near the crudity and vulgarity of the people he is writing about.

And, finally, he has tried to show the seeds of revolution turning under the asphalt of big business where decision making The king and ace of hearts were is mindless, uncaring, impersonal and unstoppable. Such a summary cashed, and another diamond. makes Dioman sound like a manifesto, a blueprint for revolt, was ralled, 15 would have been an error to ruff a heart, because East would have had a chance to a call to the barricades, But it discard a spade. Dummy was enisn't. There is less revolutionary tered with a spade lead and the remaining tricks were cross-ruffed. East had to under-ruff at rhetoric in "Didman" than in a cookbook. The novel doesn't exploit its point of view; it simply the 12th trick, and the slam was has it.

Speicher's literary devices are worth noting. The novel is written from a single, unswerving point of view-that of the central character. Everything is filtered through his consciousness. his flesh. Nothing is seen beyond his own range of vision, nothing Ŏ8 ĀJ 10 8 4 experienced beyond his own five senses. The result is a heightened intensity in the response to each happening. The mind inside the man, the events outside feed each other. Sometimes the distinction between what is thought # 198743 Neither side was vulnerable or felt and what has actually happened is blurred, but with-out loss of reality. What dif-West ference does it make whether the Pass Pass particular experience is nightmare or true occurrence, especi-Pass ally when the nightmare is almost to be preferred? For large stretches of the novel, Speicher uses a supple, flexible, argot:

highly charged, packed, grinding. The details are noisome and offensive, the images are violent, but the language is sustainedly effective. Joe Didman, Yale man, hot-

"I wasn't excited about my play, but I wasn't too worried." said Nicklaus. "I kept looking at the scoreboard, looking at num-bers instead of names. I knew my lead.

Birthday Gift

One of the pleasing sidelights to this victory for Nicklaus was that it was registered on his wife's birthday. Mrs. Barbara Nicklaus and their son, 9-year-old Jackic, were in his gallery.

From the standpoint of statistics, Nicklaus also became the first since Bobby Nichols in 1964 to lead in this tourney from start to finish. When Nichols accounted for his wire-to-wire verdict, the tourney was held in Jack's home city of Columbus, Ohio, and Nicklaus and Palmer tied for second. Nicklaus now resides in Lost Tree Village, Fla., a few miles from here.

Nicklaus said he hadn't played this course in five years until this week. From now on, he said, his goal was to complete a "grand slam." with the Masters at Augusta his next objective. A grand slam in golf is recognized as winning all four of the world's major titles in one year. The term developed after Jones won the United States and British Opens and the United States and British Amateur titles, all in 1930. For the pros, the amateur championships are not included and the hig four world cycle involves the Masters and PGA instead.

Frazier Practices Chasing Ali

By Dave Anderson

PHILADELPHIA, March (NYT) .- In the darkness be-fore dawn, Joe Frazier emerged from the Franklin Motor Inn and snorted as he shadowboxed across the parking lot in his intense manner. He was warming up for morning roadwork. Nearby, his maroon Cadillac limousine, with two white telephones in it, glinted in the fine rain.

Suddenly, without a word, the heavyweight champion hurried into the back seat and slammed the door behind him.

Two sparring partners, Ken Norton and Billy (Moleman) Williams, joined him. Up front, Les Pelemon, the lead singer Frazier's rock band known as The Knockouts, slid behind the wheel and began to guide the big car through the light traffic toward Fairmont Park as the darkness softened into a dim gray light.

"Go to the diamond," he told Pelemon. "We'll start at the diamond. Thirty minutes."

When the big car stopped for suit, slowed momentarily, but soon he sprinted down a hill a red light near a baseball diamond, the champion, suddenly and silently, bolted out the door and across the street into the park. BOSTON, March 1 (AP) .-- The Boston Bruins built a quick lead on goals by Eddie Westfall, Ken Hodge and Wayne Carleton in the first 8 1/2 minutes and held on today for a 4-3 National Hockey Lezgua victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Phil Esposito's 52d goal of the sesson, hiking the score to 4-0 early in the second period, proved decisive as the Leafs battled back. Esposito also had an assist, boosting his league-leading point total to 117

The victory enabled the Bruins to extend their unbeaten streak at home to 23 games.

Sabres 5, North Stars

Steve Atkinson scored three goals to pace Buffalo to a 5-2 victory over Minnesota.

The Sabres scored three goals within 75 seconds to break a 2-2 tie late in the third period. Atkinson put the Sabres ahead with his third goal at 18:21, then Ron Anderson scored at 18:12 and rookie Gil Perreault scored his 32d goal at 19:36. Gump Worsley, Minnesota's goalie, was hurt trying to block a shot and was carried off the ice on a stretcher. He was re-placed by Gilles Gilbert. The injury was diagnosed as a pulled right groin muscle.

Kings 8, Golden Seals 3

Defenseman Gilles Marotte scored two goals and forward Ross Lonsberry added another pair to spark Los Angeles to an 8-3 ront of California.

The Kings, who have won all four of their games against tha Seals this season, took a 2-0 lead after the first period on Lonsberry's 17th goal of the season when the Kings were shorthand-ed, and on Mike Byers' 18th goal when they had an extra man on the ice.

The subject arose when Kuhn announced last week that three seminars would be held soon--tomorrow in Fort Lauderdele, on Wednesday in Tampa and on March 18 in Phoenix, Ariz. They were recommended by the team physicians, who formed an organization in December to exchange information on medical matters in baseball. They will be attended by the doctors, trainers, executives, managers and player representatives, who in turn will brief the players on each team. "There has been in baseball," Kuhn said, "a limited use of amphetamines and barbiturates. We don't intend to allow that to develop among players. If we find it, we want to deal with it. because baseball is interested in the health and performance of

My friend Wafferman was explaining at dinner the other night what had happened at NORAD, when his 17-year-old son. Joel, raised some disturbing questiona. Why would they want to turn

"Because," Wafferman said. "it would give President Nixon an opportunity to go on the air and calm the people." "I don't want to hear President

Milan Cathedral Is Sinking, Say City Officials

MILAN, March 1 (AP) .- The historic cathedral of Milan is in danger of sinking, city officials have reported.

In the last two years the pillars sank an inch and needed steel reinforcements, officials say. There are two reasons;

The lowering of the water level iis caused by an increase in water consumption, and experts say that makes tha ground beneath the cathedral unstable.

The accord factor is constant trembling of the area around the catheoral due to heavy traffic.

WASHINGTON. - The recent fermion said. "The reason for the fiasco at NORAD when the alert is to allow everyone to prepare himself for a nuclear atlack."

"Maybe we're supposed to fill our bathtubs with water?" Joel said.

"I don't like you being sarcastic about nuclear war. It's very unpstriotic. "Or maybe he'll tell us to run outside and put plastic over our heads. "It's typical of your generation."

Wafferman said, trying not to lose his temper, "that even when there is a nuclear sttack you have no faith in the President of the United States." "I do have faith in the Presinent. He'll probably describe it as the greatest nuclear attack in the history of mankind. But if I have B half-hour to live Id rather watch I Love Lucy." "Now let me tell you something.

This clvilian warning system has been worked out hy the best brains In this country." Wafferman said, "Millions and millions of dollars have been spent to give every man, woman, and child in this country 30 minutes' notice before the enemy strikes. Without the warning system, none of us would ever know what hit us." 'I'd even settle for a re-run of

'McHrle's Navy.'' Joel said.

"I don't see any reason to continue this discussion," Wallerman said, "if you can't see the importance of civil defense in time of nuclear attack."

"I see the importance of it." Joel replied. "But what I don't understand is why we can't watch a good television show just before e go. Why can't a compromise he worked out? Nixon can he on one of the channels, and the other stations can continue their regular programming. Then people will at least have a choice of what they can watch in the last

Buckminster Fuller's World Game

By Lynn Sherr

CARBONDALE. Ill. (AP).-In the pile of mail that arrived receptly for Buckminster Fuller was a letter from Susan, a 10-year-old from Indiana. Susan wanted some instructions on how to play Fuller's "World Game."

The 75-year-old inventor and designer dictated the following advice: "Tell her to look at a map of her neighborhood and find her house. Then tell her to find it on a map of the county. Then, on a map of the United States. Then tell her to get a world map and find herself on it. Show her how she relates to the rest of the world. Then she'll understand World Game."

She may even get to play it some day. World Game, the newest project of Bickminster Fuller, has already been the subject of college seminars, of congressional hearings, of discussions Rmoog inter-national government officials and business leaders.

A complex information storage and retrieval system that uses worldwide research and a global network of computers to deal with planetary prohiems, the game tackles a typically mammoth Fuller goal: How to make the world work.

The worn "game" is misleading. In this sense, it means RO exercise, a usage familiar in technology.

Take this example: Petroleum refiners in the United States daily spew forth sulfur from their smokestacks heavily polloting the air. American chemists already know how to recycle the irritating sulfar hy turning it into sulfuric acid-a hasic component of batteries. Bot there is no excess market in this country for the product now.

However, manufacturers in Ceylon need sulfuric acid.

Today it would take an informed human to know all the facts social to know all the facts, make the connections, and try to coordinate the battery manu-facturer in Ceylon and the refinery managers in America. But with everyone plugged into World Game—the earth-wide repository of all resource information—the computers would make the connection, supply the Cevionese and help purify American air.

"Humanity is acquiring the right technology for all the wrong reasons—reasons of war," Mr. Fuller wrote recently. Therefore, we must readjust our priorities and make technology responsive to human needs.

"The whole universe is designed to be a success," Mr. Fuller points out. "The child is also designed to he a success, but he has find out what his function is first. If man is going to be able to keep oo, to function, he's going to have to discover what he is and what his prohlems are,

"World Game is an educational function of the Tery highest order, pothing else.

"I'm convinced we're here for each other," Mr. Fuller says. "Otherwise I'd do away with myself,"

Rather than take his own life back in 1927-something he consldered after his 4-year-old oaughter died of illness-Bockminster Fuller set himself the task of discovering the principles of the universe to share with his fellow man.

One of his finda was that politics will not solve problems, except those of "housekeeping." He says politics are obsolete because they were developed on a you-or-me hasis. In World Game, it is the contrary: everyone wins, no one loses.

STAY YA

"As long as you thought there wasn't enough to go around, war was justifiable-also honorable and chivalrous," he says. Mr. Fuller insists that the standard predictions of too many people and not enough food were misinformed.

"World Game, to me then, is getting the right background of thinking and then saying, "What are the moves we might be able in make that would make very clear to everybody, in the first place that there is enough to go around, so we don't have that nonsense any more.' World Game is really a matter of having your eves open to what is the basic information. It's clear to me that the whole problem ahead is an educational problem."

So far, at least eight different World Game pilot groups have heen set up to learn the techniques.

The first met for six weeks at the New York Studio School during the summer of 1969. Two dozen people explored whole-earth thinking, learned about synergy and energy, listened to Fuller. listened to each other, prepared "scenarios" of world needs such as food and energy.

Their most publicized discovery was that world hunger prohlems might be solved when energy is better channeled-that is, electricity used to provide more efficient storage and distribution of food. The group concluded that an electrical energy grid in the Arctic Circle with no national ownership could see-saw its energy to serve the entire world hy shifting power to daytime users in ona hemisphere when it was night-time in the other. A similar plan was suggested to the United Nations last spring.

Lest summer, another World Game group was conducted at Boston College including among its 30 participants the drummer from the Boston production of "Hair," a grandfather from Cleveland, several architects. Other seminars are taking place in New York, Detroit, San Francisco. Los Angeles and a few other cities. The idea is, ultimately, to link them together and enable world leaders to "plug in" for information.

Headquarters for the entire operation is in Mr. Fuller's Carbondale office, just off-campus from Soothern Illinois University. In his capacity as university professor—he teaches no formal courses— he maintains a staff of about 20 to collate world information, send out facts, and compile data on everything from the location of beef around the world to the current extent of copper production.

The Carbondale office is frequently likened to a ship, with Mr. Fuller as "our captain." "I see it as a life style, not as a joh," said Metard Gahle, a 24-year-old college dropout who turned to Mr. Fuller because, "I felt intuitively that the world could work. He was saying everything I was feeling."

"I don't expect simultaneous, cataclysmic reform," Mr. Fuller explains. "It's all due process, and everyone has his right to his educational process, hecause I want him really to think it and feel it. He's got to learn for himself, not helieve it."
